ART THAT KILLS

GEORGE PETROS

Introduction by CARLO McCORMICK

A wideranging compendium of interviews with a variety of musicians, artists, zinesters, and other travelers within the depths of the underground. The Church of Satan is pretty heavily represented with Thomas Thorn, Stanton LaVey, Peter Gilmore, and more. Photography (there's a lot of stuff from Fred Berger of Propaganda) and art reproductions liven up the book quite a bit.

One thought that struck me after reading it is that whenever someone starts talking about might makes right and survival of the fittest, it doesn't matter if they're scrawny, living on cheap booze and chicken McNuggets, have never even gone camping, and maybe had a dozen people show up to their last show, they will always consider themselves to be an ubermensch. ^Read ?
