LOVE the story (even though improbable). I picked this book up on a whim and was surprised at the end when I saw the Harlequin Romance logo in the back cover! Stacy is

NOT your average femme fatale! She's smart, tough, resourceful, she's nobody's fool. And her friends are the same! She lives with her cat, gets into situations without half trying, and needs to lose 30 pounds! A truly modern woman! The story is fast and full of scoundrels. Oh, and you can't miss the 'What goes around, comes around' message. One can only hope!

I need to read this by June 21, 2010 for reading group discussion. I've heard that it's a wonderful, don't miss book. A humorous look at a woman's who's life is in transition. Love the caption 'My husband was eaten by a bear and that's okay.' The kind of madcap adventure and witty retorts you find in a Jenny Crusie book, but without the sex.

I had a few minor complaints occasionally the book was a bit twee, and sometimes the heroine decided to do the police's job for them. Other than that, I laughed a lot at the snark and I thought the dialogue was great. I found myself telling other people about the book (as in, "You have to read this!") before I'd even finished it.

I will be looking for more by this author. I love this book. It's not your average chick lit. It doesn't focus on romance or particularly girl things. It's a humorous mystery of a woman getting caught up in strange circumstances following her ex's death, presumed to be by plane crash and eventually eaten by a bear. It's very clever and funny and interesting read. I thought this was a funny and pleasant story. Completely silly. The main character's ex gets eaten by a bear. Good to read right before bed, when I can only get through a couple of pages at a time before falling asleep the plot's not hard to remember. I bought this book solely because the cover was funny.
